

Module Two

Task: Create feeling

Understanding how your character feels will make your character relatable and believable. It will help your readers connect with your character.

Characters feel all sorts of things. Draw from your own feelings or the feelings of those around you for inspiration. Try and tap into nuanced feelings, like feeling jealous when your best friend wins an award.

Close your eyes and imagine the feeling. Notice where the feeling is in your body. What does it make your body do?

Free write from the point of view of three different characters, focussing on feeling. Explore how the feeling is experienced in the body and show the actions the character might take to deal with the feeling.
